PARENTING TIP

The pressure of perfectionism

If your child is a perfectionist you'll know all about the pressure they put on themselves.

Pressure to be the best every time, pressure to never make a mistake, both of which make it really hard to risk failure by trying something new or challenging.

Don't add to their anxiety by getting frustrated with them or trying to force them into a new way of thinking. Coach a perfectionist by calmly getting alongside and gently challenging the beliefs that aren't helping. Ask questions like "What's the worst thing that could happen if things don't go to plan. If you can model a relaxed approach when things are less than perfect, they will find it easier to cope with life's ups and downs.
